

About the Course

In February 2011, Linda Shannon is organising a homoeopathic study course with Dr Kalyan Bhattacharyea.

During the course you will see many cases of chronic disease including serious pathology and mental illness.

Dr Kalyan Bhattacharyea and his brother Dr Dilip Bhattacharyea are renowned homoeopaths and teachers with 35 years experience in full-time practice. They will be joined by the renowned diagnostitian Dr Kalishankar Bhattacharyea, and share with us their vast knowledge and experience. Their approach to practice is grounded in Hahnemann's Organon and classical teaching, applied to clinical practice.

We will be based in a village area, just outside Kolkata, where we will sit with the Dr's Bhattacharyeas in their clinics and continue theoretical and practical classes in their home overlooking the Ganges. There will be time off to visit Kolkata, shop etc. and will have a break at the beautiful Tulsari beach, where we will stay in a hotel by the beach.

This is a small course, with a maximum of 8 participants. The price includes all food, simple shared accommodation and classes but not the flights to India. Our food will be prepared by gourmet Indian cook Mrs Purabi Das.

This course will immerse you in Indian homoeopathy and culture. You will gain confidence, knowledge and experiences that will enrich your life and practice for years to come.

Fee £620

Optional extra! After the course, those who wish can stay on for a two day Indian cooking course, taught Mrs Purabi Das, whose delicious dishes delight the taste buds! (Cost £50)

Participant's Comments

"The educational value of the trip was immeasurable. Kalyan and Dilip's knowledge was inspiring. The pathology lectures brought our book work from college to life and it was very rewarding to experience homoeopathy as being an accepted part of everyone's daily life. I can't remember the last time I had so much fun - my sides literally ached from laughing!" Denise Ling - 3rd year student

"Our lecturers were very generous with their time and knowledge and the work that they do in their clinics is awe inspiring. India is full of contrasts. Kolkata was exciting and noisy but the village was slow and calm..... We learned more than we thought would be possible but we also had a lot of fun and I can highly recommend the shopping!" Jayne Jensell Bowen - 3rd year student

"Observing experienced Indian classical homoeopaths at work, in India, is both humbling and inspiring. To see the results obtained from their fast, deeply insightful, patient prescribing is very encouraging, especially taking into account the number of people they see at each clinic. My own practice has benefitted greatly from what I've learned there." Jane Parkin - Experienced homoeopath and teacher

Even though I have been in practice and teaching for 19 years, my time in India last year was so amazing and inspiring that I am going again!

What I found particularly uplifting, apart from the excellent classical teaching and research done by the Drs Bhattacharyea, was the fact that homeopathy seemed to be a well understood and popular therapy for all Indians, regardless of status or wealth. Even in the smallest villages there was a respectful acknowledgment of its efficacy. Would that it were so in our Western culture! - Ingrid Daniels
